1. An estimated 400 men were stationed at the KOETHEN (M 52/D 95) airfield. The fighter unit previously stationed there was allegedly transferred to DESSAU (M 52/E 17).

2. Maintenance work was being done on a radar set in the kaserno yard.

Description: Mobile, mounted on rubber-tired wheels; in the center there was a superstructure with a door, on top of the superstructure two parallel antenna frames, about 24 inches apart; on one end of the trailer there was a superstructure for three men to stand upright and on the other end a superstructure for the generator and instruments.

3. Another set, presumably also a radar set, was in a hangar.

Description: A globular body of metal bands, about 5 feet in diameter, on a two-wheeled limber-like undercarriage. The globe could be opened and, judging from its construction, could be hoisted on a mast.
